PREFACE

In the year 1864 there was published, by Case, Lockwood & Co., of Hartford, Conn., a book entitled "The Pratt Family, or the Descendants of Lieut. William Pratt, one of the First Settlers of Hartford and Say Brook." The author of this book, Rev. F. W. Chapman, says in the preface: "About 14 years have elapsed since Julius Pratt, Esq., of Meriden, Conn., employed the compiler of this work to prepare a History and Genealogy of Lieut. Wm. Pratt and his descendants. The late Col. Geo. Pratt, of Prattsville, N. Y., hearing of the enterprise, offered to associate himself with the projector of the work, in furnishng the requisite funds and in gathering the materials. Rev. Orson Pratt, also, of Utah Territory, with a commendable liberality, came forward and rendered efficient pecuniary aid and furnished the records of the various families connected with him in the same line of descent."

This book contains over 400 pages of closely printed matter and as the author says, required 14 years to compile.

In 1914, fifty years after its publication, it occurred to some of the survivors that the value of this history should be preserved to the coming generations, by extending it up to date, and, if it was advisable to do this at all, the sooner it was done, the better, as very few of those recorded in the Chapman history were still living, the family was becoming more scattered and the longer it was deferred the more onerous would be the work of collecting the data; so, in March, 1914, a circular letter was addressed to all the known living descendants of Zadock and Hannah Pratt, asking them to express their views as to whether they considered such a work desirable, and, if so, inviting their co-operation. As to the number of favorable replies, the result was quite disappointing, which was compensated for by the hearty enthusiasm of those in favor of the plan.

As those interested were all descendants of Zadock and Hannah Pratt, it was not deemed advisable to go beyond their collateral branches in the preparation of the new work. This would be comparatively easy as regards time, accuracy, labor, and expense, whereas, if the scope of the work were to include all the branches as given in the Chapman history, it would doubtless take the time of a professional genealogist some years to compile.

For the benefit of those who have no copy of the Chapman history, an outline is given showing the direct connection between Lieut. Wm. Pratt, the first settler, and Zadock and Hannah Pratt.

The Chapman history may be found on file in the New York Public Library at 42nd Street, the Boston Public Library, the Springfield (Mass.) Public Library, and the Library of the Connecticut Historical Society at Hartford.

For the purpose of easy reference and identification, all descendants' names have been given a number.

Plain numbers, as 63, indicate the Name's genealogical position in this Supplement.

Numbers in parenthesis, as (1692), are the numbers given to those names appearing in the Chapman "Pratt History."

Where both numbers in parentheses and plain numbers are used, as 6—(1692), they are the names' numbers as appearing in both books.

DESCENDANTS OF LIEUT. WILLIAM PRATT

FIRST GENERATION

Lieut. Wm. Pratt, the first settler, supposed to have come with Rev. Thomas Hooker to Newtown (now Cambridge), Mass., in 1633, from thence to Hartford, Conn., in June, 1636, married Elizabeth Clark, daughter of John Clark, first of Say-Brook and afterwards of Milford. The date of his marriage has not been found. The fact of her being the daughter of John Clark is proved by a will found in the probate office at New Haven.

The precise date of Wm. Pratt's death is not known. It appears, from the Say-Brook town records, that he left a will, but estates at the time of his decease were settled at New London and the records previous to 1700 were destroyed by fire, so no trace of it has been found.

He attended General Court as a Deputy the 23rd and last time, at the session which convened at Hartford on May 9, 1678.

SECOND GENERATION

The children of the above named William and Elizabeth Pratt:

THIRD GENERATION

2—(5)

CAPT. WILLIAM PRATT, 5th child of Lieut. Wm. Pratt, born May 14, 1653, married Hannah Kirtland, supposed to be the sister of the first John Kirtland, who settled at Say-Brook February 20th, 1678, by whom he had 5 children.

* Not included in the family record, but recognized as the son of Lieut. Wm. Pratt, in a deed of gift from his father in Say-Brook Records.

He was a man of note in the civil, military and religious affairs of the town, being often appointed selectman, surveyor, captain of the militia, committee of the church, etc. He was a large land holder in Say-Brook and Hebron.

Capt. Wm. Pratt died March 14, 1718, aged 65, as appears upon his monument, which is still standing in the old burial ground at Essex.

FIFTH GENERATION

4—(1563)

ZEPHANIAH PRATT, son of Benjamin and Anna Pratt, born 1712, married a lady whose Christian name was Abagail, but whose family name has not been ascertained, by whom he had two children. Mr. Zephaniah Pratt died in the year 1758, aged 46. Mrs. Abigail Pratt married, for a second husband, a Mr. Phelps, by whom it is supposed she had some children. No children of Zephaniah Pratt are recorded on the town books, but the court of probate, April 17, 1759, distributed the estate to the widow, Abagail, and children, Huldah and Zadock, having previously, July 4, 1758, appointed Abagail Pratt, guardian to the aforesaid children.

SIXTH GENERATION

ZADOCK PRATT, son of Zephaniah and Abagail Pratt, married Hannah Pickett, daughter of Benjamin Pickett, of New Milford, Conn., November 1, 1781. His wife was born September 3, 1755. When quite a young man, the Revolutionary War broke out and Mr. Pratt joined the troops, laboring at Dorchester Heights, near Boston. Serving in the main body of the army on Long Island, under Lord Sterling, he was taken prisoner in the unfortunate battle of the 27th of August, 1776.

The prisoners were confined for some time in the Middle Dutch Church, New York, now the Post Office, and also in the Old Sugar House. In his last moments, Mr. Pratt retained a vivid recollection of the cruelties of that monster, Provost Marshall Cunningham. The surrender of Fort Washington, embarrassing the British General, with the number of his prisoners, he, with one hundred and thirty others, was transferred to Whitby prison-ship,

> "————doomed to famine, shackles and despair,
> Condemned to breathe a foul infected air,
> In sickly hulks, devoted while they lay,
> Successive funerals gloomed each dismal day."

To crown his misery, the small pox broke out, designedly introduced, it is said, and of the above number only seven survived. Returning to the army, after his release, he was engaged in the storming of Stony Point, by General Wayne, in 1779. In the following year, while on furlough, he was married at Sherman, Conn., but returned to the army, and remained in the vicinity of the Highlands until the year 1783, when he was honorably discharged, and shortly after moved to Stephentown, N. Y. Leaving there, for a few years he remained in Middleburg, N. Y., finally going to Windham (now Jewett), N. Y., where he resided until his death, which occurred July 27, 1828, aged 73 years. (Furnished by his grandson, Col. Geo. Pratt.) The date of Mrs. Hannah Pratt's decease is not known.

(Every thing up to this point has been copied as it appears in the Chapman History of the Pratt Family.)

ZADOCK PRATT, a private in the Revolutionary War, was issued a Certificate of Pension, on the 8th of July, 1819, and inscribed on the roll of New York, at the rate of $8.00 per month, to commence the 1st day of January, 1819.

On his pension papers, he was known as 'Revolutionary Invalid," file No. 44263.

To secure his pension papers, Zadock Pratt, on the 5th of January, 1819, appeared before Munson Buel, one of the Judges of the Court of Common Pleas, for Greene County, New York, and made the following oath: "That he enlisted for one year and one month, in the first part of December, 1775, at the town of Limo, Connecticut, in the company commanded by Capt. Christopher Ely, in the Regiment commanded by Col. Parsons, in the Connecticut line, and that he continued to serve the said company about two months and was then transferred into the company commanded by Capt. Joseph Jewett, in the Regiment commanded by Col. Jedediah Huntington in the Connecticut line, and continued to serve in said company until the 27th or 28th day of August, 1776, when he was taken prisoner at the Battle of Flatbush, on Long Island, and remained a prisoner with the British on board the ship Whitby, and at the City of New York until about the first of January, 1777, when he was exchanged at the City of New York, and returned home."

This record was confirmed by affidavits made on January 2, 1819, by John Palmer, before Thomas E. Barker, one of the Judges of Court of Common Pleas for Greene County, New York, and by Jonathan Pratt before the same judge on January 1, 1819.

ZADOCK PRATT, son of Zadock and Hannah Pratt, born October 3, 1790, was married four times. 1. To Beda Dickerman, October 6, 1817, who died without children, April 19, 1818. 2. To Esther Dickerman, October 2, 1821, who died without issue, April 22, 1824. 3. To Abigail P. Watson, daughter of Wheeler Watson, of Rensellaerville, formerly South Kingston, R. I., January 12, 1828. She died February 5, 1834, leaving three children. 4. To Mary E. Watson, March 16, 1835, who died without children.

The story of his very active life is perhaps best told from the following extracts from a printed diary given by him to Mrs. Martha Dayton, of Harpersfield, New York.

"1790 Zadock Pratt was born at Stephentown, Rensellaer County, N. Y.

1797 Moved with his father's family to Middleburg, Schoharie County, N. Y.

1802 Removed to Windham, now Jewett, Greene County, New York, and worked at tanning in his father's yard.

1807 Was on board the Clermont, the first steamboat that navigated the North River.

1811 Twenty-one years old had $30 of his own savings.

1812 Commenced business on his own account as saddler at Lexington.

1813 Built a shop.

1814 Went as a soldier for the defense of New York City.

1817 First partnership with his brothers Ezra and Bennett in tanning.

1819 Was sergeant in Capt. Stone's Company of Cavalry.

1820 Captain in the Fifth Regiment of New York State Artillery and uniformed the Company.

1823 Colonel of the One Hundred and Sixteenth Regiment of Infantry of the State of New York.

1824 Justice of the Peace at Lexington. Was present at landing of Lafayette at New York, also at celebration of completion of Erie Canal.

1824 October 24th located and began to build on the Schoharie-kill, Prattsville; November 17th, finished tannery dam at Prattsville.

1825 March—Began to build his tannery 550 feet long, 43 feet wide, on the Schoharie-kill, where since has grown up the town of Prattsville. More than one hundred houses having been erected by himself. One-third of three churches and one-half of the academy. Commanded the escort of General Lafayette to Catskill.

1827 Supervisor of the town of Windham.

1836 Chosen as one of the Electors of President and Vice-President. Cast his vote for Van Buren.

Was elected a representative in Congress.

1837 Was appointed on Congressional Committee on Military affairs.

Was appointed on Congressional Standing Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

1838 Submitted a resolution providing for procuring foreign seeds and plants, to be distributed gratuitously to farmers.

Moved a resolution in favor of Reduction of Postage.

Seven years aftei, postage was reduced from 25c to 5c.

1838 Received the first silver medal of the American Institute for best tanned leather.

1839 Resolution in Congress that material for government buildings hereafter be either granite or marble.

Moved a bill establishing a branch mint in New York.

1842 Chosen a Representative in Congress.

1843 Established the Prattsville Bank.

1844 Moved a resolution providing for site for the National Washington Monument.

1844 Offered an amendment to the general appropriation bill for the appropriation of $10,000 to begin survey of route for a railroad to the Pacific. This was the first movement ever made toward that "Immense Enterprise."

1845 Moved a resolution antagonizing the transfer of certain clerks to perform duties of the Bureau of Statistics. This bureau is now expanded into the Department of the Interior.

Was on the committee that located the Statue of General Washington, now in front of the Capital.

1845 Offered a resolution for the preservation of the flags taken in battle.

Sent the first hemlock sole-leather to England.

When Congress adjourned this year he had been in five sessions of Congress and was never absent a day.

1848 Received the honorary degree of Master of Arts from Union College.

1849 Elected President of the Mechanics Institute of the City of New York.

1850 The stone cutters and mechanics of Washington voted a block of marble to be made a part of the Washington Monument in honor of him.

1859 Closed his tanning business at Prattsville and elsewhere, after having turned out over two million sides of leather, and having employed forty thousand men; aggregate capital employed $16,000,000.

1865 Awarded an honorary diploma for being the best equestrian at the Greene County Agricultural Exhibition. He was then seventy-five years old.

The forty years from 1820 to 1860 had been active untiring journey of life.

"I never knew fatigue or fear, never carried any arms, and few have heard or seen more of the world. 'Minding my own business' has no doubt saved me from thieves, robbers and murderers."

Since his death, the homestead of Zadock Pratt has been kept up, as he left it, by his descendants. During his life he had carved upon a great ledge of rocks many figures; as these have attracted considerable attention to Prattsville, the following newspaper article may be of interest, as showing the history of these carvings.

"In the beautiful Western Catskill district, where natural wonders are so plentiful, there is one creation of man which claims even more attention from summer visitors. It is the carved rocks of Prattsville's only park, intended as an everlasting memorial to the name and fame of the late Colonel Zadock Pratt, ex-Congressman, banker and the tanner who started Jay Gould in business. A visit to these rocks is a favorite expedition for those who spend the summer in Stamford and other towns of the region.

"The carvings are on the face of the cliff which rises above this quaint little village. They are covered with white paint and stand out in such bold relief that they can be seen for a long distance. There is a horse, life size; an arm with a sledge hammer in the hand, the head of Colonel Pratt, a hemlock tree, a casket, a spring and other devices. The whole follows an allegorical scheme, and outlines the history of the man who had them carved.

"It came about in this way, according to the local traditions: Colonel Pratt was walking along the highway near his house, when he was stopped by a man who begged for assistance. The fellow was dressed like a workman, and carried a bag of tools over his shoulder. He said he wanted to reach his home, on the Hudson.

"What can you do? asked the Colonel.

"I am a stone carver by trade," replied the man, "but there is nothing in my line in this part of the country."

"How do you know there isn't?" said Pratt. "What could you make out of that rock there?" He pointed to a huge boulder alongside the road.

"I could make anything you might want if you gave me time," said the man.

"Carve a horse!" ordered Pratt, and the man started to work without delay.

In the afternoon the workman came to the Colonel and said that he had been forced to stop the carving by a neighbor who claimed to own the rock.

"So he stopped your carving, did he?" said the banker. "Does not want me to rear works of art about the countryside, eh? Well, I'll show him! I've got rocks of my own! Go up the cliff and carve the horse there. It is my land and no one can stop you."

Colonel Pratt liked the man's work, and employed him by the month. Other figures began to appear upon the rocks, and when finished were painted white, to the astonishment of the villagers. Sofas and chairs, carved out of solid rock, were scattered in the grove about the Pratt homestead. Elaborate tomb-stones were erected to several horses and dogs which died while the stone mason sculptor was at work.

"Colonel Pratt had two children and a tablet bearing their names is a part of the decoration of the cliff.

He once explained the allegorical references in the carvings by saying: "I am a tanner, and I have two children. There is the reproduction of the tannery and the number of sides of hemlock leather which I have tanned. The tree represents the material by which I gained wealth, the sledge hammer, that it was by hard knocks."

One of the last of Col. Pratt's business ventures was the operation of a tannery at Gouldsboro, Pa., with Jay Gould. This partnership was formed August 13, 1857, and was terminated on February 2, 1859, when Colonel Pratt sold out to Gould. The records show that this partnership was successful only for Gould, and perhaps Colonel Pratt considered it a reflection on his business acumen, for in none of his memoirs has he referred to this association, yet the history of Gould's later life shows that many other good business men contributed unfortunately to Gould's financial success.

COLONEL GEORGE W. PRATT, son of Hon. Zadock and Abagail Pratt, born April 18, 1830, was married on April 30, 1855 to Anna F. Tibbits, daughter of Benjamin Tibbits, of Albany, N. Y. They had two children.

Mrs. Pratt is now living at Dinard, France.

Col. Pratt's childhood was spent at the paternal homestead in Prattsville, N. Y. When 18 years of age he made a tour of the British Islands, the Continent of Europe and Egypt and the Holy Land. He had a knowledge of many languages, was a member of the leading scientific societies of this country and Europe and in consequence of his attainments was honored with the degree of Doctor of Philosophy by one of the leading German Universities. His library, containing over 7000 volumes and including the Bible in thirty-two languages, was the best in the country in the Department of Eastern Literature.

When but 27 years old he served as State Senator at Albany, N. Y., for the years 1858-1859.

From his earliest manhood Col. Pratt was identified with every effort to further the interest of the State Military forces and make it what it should have been always—a thoroughly organized and disciplined body of soldiery. In 1852 and 1853 he held the office of Quarter Master General of the State of New York, remedying many errors which he found in that department. In 1856 he was appointed to the Colonelcy of the 20th Regiment, embracing the force of Ulster and Greene Counties, New York, and when the call of the President of the United States came for 75,000 volunteers to defend the Capitol, he marched at the head of his men with the regiments from New York City. At the second call for troops he re-enlisted with his regiment for the war, and bore with them the toils and hardships of the campaign in Virginia until the second battle of Manassas on August 30, 1862, when he fell wounded at the head of his column. He was conveyed to the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Tibbits, in Albany, New York, where he died on September 13, 1862. His funeral was attended by one of the largest and most imposing civic and military processions ever witnessed in Albany.* It is as true now as when the Greek sage uttered it, that one of the differences between war and peace is, that in peace the sons bury the fathers, but in war the fathers bury the sons.

By his efficient aid in furnishing funds and material, Col. Pratt made possible the publishing of the Pratt history in 1864, of which history this book is a supplement.

During much of the time of his active life, Col. Pratt was a member of the firm of Pratt & Corse, leather dealers in New York City.

Maj. Gen. Irwin McDowell, in his official report to Maj. Gen. John Pope, dated November 6, 1862 wrote: "The accomplished and gallant Col. Pratt, commanding the 20th New York Militia, was mortally wounded."

Lieut. Col. Theodore B. Gates, in his official report to Capt. J. P. Kimball, Assistant Adjutant General, dated September 4, 1862, said: "Among the killed and wounded are many officers, including in the latter Col. Pratt, whose loss is severely felt."

Y., on October 26, 1853, by whom she had five children. She was a member of the Connecticut Society of Colonial Dames of America, and the American Anthropological Society.

Julia H. Pratt Ingersoll died March 13, 1898, and was buried in Grove Street cemetery at New Haven, Connecticut.

Hon. Colin Macrae Ingersoll was a prominent figure in the life of New Haven for many years. Tall, distinguished and of comely appearance, he attracted attention everywhere. He was the sixth in line from John

*A very complete and extensive record of Col. Pratt's civil and military life is given in a book entitled "The Ulster Guard and the War of the Rebellion," by Col. Theodore B. Gates.

Ingersoll, who was in Hartford in 1653. Mr. Ingersoll was the son of the late Ralph Isaacs and Margaret Vanden Heuvel Ingersoll, and was born in New Haven, March 11, 1819. He was graduated from Trinity College, and in 1839 from the Yale Law School, and took up the practice of his profession in New Haven.

In 1843 he was clerk of Connecticut State Senate.

In 1847 and 1848 he was Secretary of the American Legation at St. Petersburg at the time his distinguished father was Minister at the Russian Court. For a year during his father's absence he was "Charge des Affairs."

He was elected to Congress in 1851-3, and 1854-5.

He was Adjutant General of the State from 1867 to 1871.

He retired into private life after this. Home in New Haven at 85 Trumbull Street.

He died September 11, 1903, and was buried in Grove Street Cemetery, New Haven, Connecticut.

MARY PRATT, daughter of Bennett and Mary Pratt, born May 30, 1822, married Daniel Cass, April 7, 1853, at Pittsfield, Mass.

Mr. Cass was born on a farm at Richmond, N. H., on November 7, 1821. When a young man he went to Pittsfield in 1855; then moved to Belvidere, Ill., and to Nora, Ill., in 1857. In 1862 they resumed their travels west, following the custom of frontiersmen, of driving their cattle before their emigrant wagon; they stopped temporarily at Waterloo, Iowa, and soon after located near Horace Grove, staying there two or three years.

They then bought a farm at Oakland, Iowa. The climate here being too severe, they decided to take advantage of one of the numerous farms offered for sale by the impoverished Virginia farmers, after the war, so again they moved with two teams and wagons for Virginia, but, finding Knoxville, Ind., to which they came, to their liking, they settled there; after remaining a short time, they moved to Mt. Tabor, about four miles from Munsey, Ind. In 1881 they moved to WaKeeney, Kansas, where Mr. Cass died on March 23, 1890. Mary Cass died November 28, 1895, and was buried at Collyer, Kansas.

SARAH ISABELLA PRATT, daughter of Ezra and Mary Pratt, born in Schoharie County, New York, October 26, 1847, married Charles W. Lilley, October 31, 1888. No children. Mrs. Sarah Lilley died December 25, 1894, at New Milford, Pa.

The following is an extract from a sketch of Mrs. Lilley's life taken from a New Milford newspaper at the time of her death:

"In the death of Mrs. C. W. Lilley, Christmas morning, New Milford loses one of its brightest social ornaments, the church one of its warmest and most liberal patrons, her husband a lovable and helpful companion, and her father and brother a devoted daughter and sister. * * * Dignified in bearing, graceful in carriage, tasteful in dress, and affable in manner, she never failed to leave the impress of a noble character upon even casual acquaintances. * * * With ample means at her command, she so unostentatiously dispensed her charity that many a suffering one has had occasion to thank God for relief with no knowledge of the gentle medium through which it had been extended."
